MONEY AND STOCKS.

Associated Bank Clearances for the Day and Week-Increase of the Bank Reserve.

Though borrowers have been more numerous during the week than for some time, the deposits have greatly increased. and the reserve fund of the associated banks is again growing larger. The clearances and balances Saturday, compared with the same date of 1890, were as follows; Dec. 12, 1890. Dec. 12, 1891. $635,167,88

The following is a synopsis of the reports made to the clearing-house Saturday by the associated banks, of Indianapolis, of their condition at the close of business cess of the 33% per cent. required by the clearing-house rule. NEW YORK QUOTATIONS. At New York, Saturday, money on call was easy; no loans; closing offered at 2 per Prime mercantile paper, 4% @6 per cent.

Sterling exchange was quiet and steady at $4.82 for sixty-day bills and $4.84% for demand.

The total sales of stocks were 121,713 shares, including the following: Atchison 9,450; Canada Southern, 7,050; Chicago Gas, 9,823; Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, 2,500; Erie, 3,530; Louisville & Nashville, 3,300; Missouri Pacific, 7,180; Northwestern, 2.150; North American, 2,150; Northern Pacific preferred, 5,340; Reading, 2,500; Richmond & West Point, 12,626; St. Paul,

The stock market in some respects was almost a repitition of that of the previous day, and especially in showing a good demand for bonds, while the trading in stocks was light, the latter being subjected to a heavy pressure by the professionals, which imparted a weak tone to the dealings during most of the session. Easy money rates in all the important financial centers seem to be driving the investors into good investment bonds and stocks as the only available means of using their money. This condition of affairs is looked upon as a forerunner of better prices. The continued strength in foreign exchange and interpretation that there is American securities by holders renders two parties possible in the stock market, and the 'bears" are both active and aggressive from time to time. Yesterday the feature was the persistent pressure to sell by the professional element, and while Missouri Pacific received most attention at first, and was used to stary the ball rolling. other stocks scored equally as heavy net losses, which was accomplished in the face of another encouraging bank statement.
The only really strong point in the market was the low-priced specialties. The Iowa Central shares were most prominent. As a rule, however, the list was devoid of special feature, moving with unusual uniformity. The early decline was soon checked, and a partial rally followed, but the late dealings saw a renewal of the pressure in a more general way, and prices slowly melted un-til the close. The business done was only moderate, but the last prices were, as a rule, the lowest of the day. The final losses are generally large fractions in the active stocks and small ones in the others, but Northwestern, on a quiet business, lost 14 per cent., Missouri Pacific ended down . Lake Shore a like amount and Burling-

Railroad bonds were in fair demand and only Reading fours were especially active. There was great strength shown in spite of the weakness in the stock list. The inactive bonds as usual showed the largest gains, but the tone even among the speculative issues was unmistakable. Among the more important advances, Dakotas, Great Southern firsts rose to 102; International seconds, 2, to 74; Peoria, Decatur & Evansville firsts, 2, to 1018, and National Starch firsts, 2, to 97, while the only losses of note were Union Pacific, Denver & Gulf firsts, 1 per cent. at 71/2, and Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City firsts, 1 per cent, at 91. Gorvernment bonds were dull and firm, while States were neglected. Closing quo-

THE JOBBING TRADE.

A Good Business in Hardware, but No Sales The wholesale hardware trade for the year now closing has been better than in any preceding year. Collections have been fair, but it has been necessary to crowd country merchants in order to make them so. The mild weather has been against the sale of skates, and this is a large trade when the weather is favorable. The caudy trade, stimulated by the approaching holidays, is booming. The demand from the smaller cities and towns for higher-priced confectionery is increasing. [The quotations given below are the selling prices of wholesale dealers.]

OVERLOOKED SOLDIERS.

A Blank to Be Filled by Veterans Not Counted in the Last Census.

The following blank is printed in the Journal by request of the Superintendent of Census, for the purpose of obtaining, through this paper. detailed information respecting the military services of such survivors of the war of the rebellion as were overlooked, or have reason to believe they were overlooked by the enumerator in June, 1890. CHICAGO "BULLS" AT SEA

Or They May as Well Be Since the "Bears" Have the Upper Hand on Wheat.

The Leading Cereal Had a Tentency to Weakness, and Foreign News Was All That Prevented a Collapse-December Corn Firm.

TRADING AT CHICAGO.

Operators in Maize Transferring Their Deals to the January Future. CHICAGO, Dec. 12 .- Wheat was extremely quiet to-day, price changes being very narrow. While a firm undertone was maintained most of the day, there was at no time any decided strength. Cables, while quoting a steady tone abroad, did not fail to note the trade here was exceedingly slow, with buyers holding off in view of the weakness in America. The report that Germany had reduced duties 30 per cent. helped the market some, but more by preventing a decline than in any other way. The "bear" sentiment is still pronounced, and is led by Ream, with Cudahy, Pardridge and other "bear" plungers acting in line with him. Ream stood in the pit and sold generously on all firm spots, but covered a good deal of the big line sold yesterday and previously whenever he could do so at a good profit. The "bulls" had no leader and acted in a cautious, balfhearted and discouraged way. Milmine-Bodman took back some of the wheat they sold yesterday. Gifford, Baxter, Linn and the New Yorkers were good sellers. Geddes and Dunn made liberal purchases. The clearances were rather light, aggregating about 300,000 bushels. Late cables to the board were all dull and lower, both in Great Britain and on the continent. These advices and continued selling caused the market to weaken during the last hour. May opened at 98c, sold to 984c, eased off to 97%c, back to 98%c, off to 97%c, up to 98c again, then weakened and closed at

Corn shows very little life for seller of this year, and kept steady at 54@55c. There is but little demand, and it begins to look as if the "shorts" had pretty well evened up on the big scare of Wednesday last. The nervousness seems to be extending into January, and that future was higher, with "shorts" active buyers. The receipts of contract corn are still light, only nineteen cars to-day out of 848. There is a growing apprehension as to how "shorts' will be filled. May was steady within a range of bc, and closed at the bottom. Oats were quiet and steady during mest of the session, but weakened and receded some during the last hour with other Hog products were quiet and steady. Cudahy was a liberal seller of pork, which was weak early, but improved some. It the afternoon Ream and Cudahy joined in an attack on prices, which yielded the more readily because of the weakness in grains; going to the bottom prices of the day. There was a partial recovery, however, and the close was at medium figures. Estimated receipts for Monday are: Wheat, 260 cars; corn, 380 cars; oats, twenty-two cars; hogs, 50,000 head, and 240,000 next

Princess Mary's Picture. Boston Transcript. A large photograph which has reached this country of the Princess May of Teck, who, if she and her husband live long enough, and the Anarchists do not get at the crown before they can, will be Queen of England some time, shows a good-natured, spunky young person of respectable middle-class appearance and only remotely Hanoverian lineaments. Her hair is not dressed as English young women and New England young women of good family are accustomed to dress theirs, but in the much frizzed, curled and brought-down-on-theforehead way which is fashionable in Vienna and St. Louis. However, there is a certain vigor and sturdiness and sagaciousness about the face which inclines one to congratulate the young Duke of Clarence and Avondale. From the picture, one would guess that the young lady was at the same time amiable and independent, and it helps one to understand the personal popularity which the Princess is said to ossess. One can also understand why Prince Albert Victor should be delighted that the match has been made. It must be pleasant not to have to marry a foreigner. And yet there is something about this photograph which suggests that it would not be well for the young Prince to go about much, singing:

You must wake and call me early, call me early, For I'm to be king of the May, mother, I'm to be king of the May! The Princess May Victoria looks quite capable of breaking off the match if his royal highness should assume too much kingship.

The Art of Christmas Giving. Ladies' Home Journal. It has been nearly two thousand years ago since the first beautiful Christmas gift gladness and joy by shepherd and king alike. To-day, in memory of that, I give you some little trifle because I love you, but I give it so ungraciously you scarcely like to take it. A pretty way to send a gift is to do it up in one of the colored tissue papers, tie it with the extremely narrow ribbon that can be bought for a few pennies, the whole twelve yards, and so give your friend the pleasure of untying the mysterious box, of removing the pretty ribbons and of coming to the surprise at last, the something for which she has longed for many a day. I know a woman who has wanted a pin-cushion ten years, who in that time has gotten two diamone bracelets and innumerable rings, but the longed-for pin-cushion has never come. She still hopes for it, and believes that this year will bring it. You say, "Why not buy it?" Well, now, who ever bought a pincushion without the intention of giving it | the best of my knowledge and belief which you begrudge. Such a gift will bear no fruit for you, not even the honest fruit of thanks. You can quote as many times as you want that "unto him that hath shall be given;" and so it shall, because it is just this way, my friend: You possess the gifts of gentleness and graciousness, of politeness and of goodness, and these are gifts that call others to them. If people are cross and disagreeable there is very slight inclination to wish them a merry Christmas; if they are irritable and enappish no-body cares whether they are blessed with a Christmas present or not, but unto her who hath the graces that I have cited will certainly come a basketful of good gifts, "Pressed down, shaken together and running over."

THE WOMAN'S PAGE.

Some Sarcastic Remarks on a Newspaper Feature That Some Editors Admire.

Kate Field's Washington. The same public which finds something irresistibly comical in a God-fearing editor who puts a Scripture text at the top of his editorial column swallows in the woman's page, without apparent effort, news from the demi-monde inextricably mixed up with moral paragraphs which might be plagiarized from dear old Hannah More. It must, indeed, be true that women have no sense of humor. Suppose, for an instant, a man's page made up on the same plan as the feminine hodge-podge in question. It starts off, let us say, with a tariff editorial founded on the recent statistics about the importation of steel rails, then glides gracefully into a eulogy of the striped autumn trouserings; it goes on with a description of how Mr. X.—of the writer's acquaintance—subdued his book-keeper and office-boy, modeled after the latest essay on the management of domestic servants; next comes an abstract of a recent sermon by Dr. John Hall, telling how the reverend gentleman was dressed and the name of his tailor; then there is the account of a prize-fight, followed with some advice upon how to keep your wife home evenings; and it winds up with directions for making a revolving office-chair of a barrel, two recipes for turning neckties and one for making punch, and some moral reflections on variations of the aphorism, "Be good and you will be happy.

In preparing a meal for a child, an invalid or a tramp-in fact, for any weak or down-trodden creature who cannot help himself and may therefore be insulted with impunity-we heap together food of all sorts of flavors, mincing it fine to promote convenience in the first two cases, or piling up in a promiscuous mass if the recipient be a wayfarer, taking care only that there shall be enough. No chance for choice between this and that is left the consumer. There is so much bread, and so much meat, and so much pudding arranged in strata which defy the ordinary rules of sequence in a meal. It must be eaten that way or left alone. Well, this seems to me very like the woman's page. which is filled up with glimpses of women's clubs, remnants of haberdashery, directions for doing things which no sane perand, over it all, flavoring the whole mass, a dash of that patronizing advice-giving which is the incorrigible fault of the average woman who scribbles.

The Achievements of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Alice H. Rhine, in December Forum.

It is through this dominant thought of doing something active for bettering the condition of women, and, consequently, the rest of mankind, that, after many years of struggle-first, by the women suffrage so-cieties, then by the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and later by the agitation in the clubs—the sex has gained the right to vote on school matters in Twentyeight States in the Union; that women can serve in hospitals as physicians and nurses; that women have been allowed to protect the unfortunate of their own sex as matrons in police stations, or, as in Chicago, in the city jails. In two States the right of equal suffrage has been granted, and in several others permission to vote on matters connected with municipal reform, Colleges which in former times denied them the privilege of entrance have opened wide their doors to let them gain the knowledge they desire. These are some of the actual gains of a class of beings to whom was denied the right, at one time, to learn the alphabet.

A Valet's Handsome Income.

New York Press. A curious breach of promise case, which has just been tried in England, gives us a passing glumpse into the high life below stairs in Europe. The faithless defendant in the case was one of the assistant valets of the Earl of Northbrook. His regular wages were exactly $20 a month, but his income amounted to no less than $250 a month, the difference between that figure and the amount of his wages being derived from tips contributed by visitors to the Earl. This means that the man made close upon $3,000 a year from tips alone. The system of tipping is one of the most pernicious features of English servants' life, and a round of visits to English country houses during the autumn and winter seasons constitutes a terrible drain on the purse. There are innumerable people to be fed, from the butler down to the very stable boy. I may add that, in view of the handsome income enjoyed by this faithless gentleman's gentleman, the jury awarded the parlor-maid, whom he had jilted, £800. Secrets of Longevity in Maine.

One of our citizens who lives in the snburbs got some repairing done on his chickbors concluded to assist him. When the were ready to begin it was found there were no laths. Of course, these were peeded. Having no other team handy a all five men rode into town, got one bundle of laths and returned. The return journey was pleasantly passed in guessing on the number of laths in the bundle. Of course, it was dinner time as soon as they arrived home, and the job was postponed. By o'clock the five men were on the spot and had expressed their views, each with a hammer. The job was completed in just six minutes. After swaggering about the yard a while telling yarns they went to their different homes proud in the consciousness of duty well done.
